The Man Behind the Scenes?

Wonder if the "fine Albert hand" of Hon. Vernon W. Smith had any part to play in the assistance the Mackenzie King Government put the hobbles of a high tariff shape on the feet of Western development and prosperity? Alberta's Minister of Railways sent a good part of the winter in the States, supposedly discussing with the Federal Government matters connected with the past, present and future of the E. D. & B. C. railway.

But, according to another and not less believable report, Mr. Smith is trying to switch the votes of Progressive members to Mr. Meighen, on the strength of a promise that a Meighen Government would take the E. D. & B. C. railway off the hands of the Hamilton City Council.

Then came that sudden change of mind on the part of Premier Brownlee by which he found himself unable to accept the school lands clause in the resources, bill—to wit, the Government already given assent, and which the Legislature had already twice approved on his motion.

Then followed on Tuesday the introduction in Parliament of a resolution which invited the Progressive members to turn out the Mackenzie King Government and install a Meighen Government, on the pretext that it was the Federal Ministers who had killed the resources bill.

Either Hon. Vernon W. Smith is the victim of a deadly array of circumstances, or Alberta's Minister of Railways was one of the conspirators in the scheme to persuade the members to wreck the Mackenzie King Government and put the hobbles of a Meighen tariff on the farmers of Alberta.

Wails From the Southern Organ.

Words fail to express the chagrin, disappointment and regret with which the local Southern paper notes that only two Alberta Progressives on Tuesday supported the attempt to overthrow the Mackenzie King Government and impose upon the West a tariff dictated by and for the manufacturing interests of eastern Canada.

"The ex-knower his stall and the axe his master's crib." But no better than the Journal knows who owns it and for what purpose it is kept.

Why should the Southern corporation run a newspaper in Alberta if that newspaper cannot be used to land public men who are in the public mind and are the welfare of their constituents on behalf of those interests in eastern Canada upon which the Southern corporation depends for dividends and the investment in eastern newspaper enterprises?

Or why should the Southern corporation maintain a newspaper in Alberta if it cannot be used to plant a market of votes, since Alberta public men stand for the rights and interests of their constituents and their Province against just such predatory schemes as the board of strategy launched on Tuesday against the progress and well-being of the West?

Those Progressives from Alberta and other western provinces who refused to be used as pawns in the market of votes, since Alberta public men stand for the rights and interests of their constituents and their Province against just such predatory schemes as the board of strategy launched on Tuesday against the progress and well-being of the West?

BLACK EYES
Full many a blackened eye I've seen,
I've had one, early I confess.
All the boys, they tell me, have
I need not speculate on cause.
I know all the boys, they tell me, have
To the grimacing wound and I
Know all the snakes and the snakes
Which greet a man's discolored eye.

Black eyes, it seems, are food for mirth,
Laughter is all that they receive,
Though sometimes brought to birth,
None will the simple fact receive.
"Ah," the word exclaims with gloom,
"Who decorated you last night?"
Who found you where you should be? It
Must have been a royal fight!"

I've met a hundred men or more,
Along my journey through the years,
Who've walked into an open door,
Or bumped their heads on the stairs, or tripped
Or tumbled down the stairs, or tripped
Against a rocking chair at night.
My blackened friends have always slipped
And none has ever had a fight.

A black eye is a curious thing,
It's a grimacing wound with love and tears,
Looks on the colored swollen ring
And makes of it a cause for sneers.
But men whose eyes are blacked are queer—
Not one of all the boys I know has
That I have known through many a year
Admitted that he'd slipped a toe.

Dr. Crane's Editorial

TRUE PROBLEMS
Little by little what is called the Great Alberta Problem has been disappearing before the encephalograph of civilization. The Canadian Government has been reduced to a mere square mile of water and a few acres of land. The water is a source of power for many factories. The land is a source of power for many factories. The water is a source of power for many factories. The land is a source of power for many factories.

Whatsoever thing to make a better garden out of this suburban life is in line with the general purpose of mankind.

Miss Grouchy May Be First Woman Ordained in Canada

Council Decided it Could Not Act Without Referring to Presbyteries

Montreal, June 15.—(By wire) A woman minister of the Presbyterian Church in Canada, Miss Grouchy, is being considered for ordination in the city of Montreal. The general assembly of the church, which met in Montreal last week, decided to refer the matter to the presbyteries of the city. The assembly was held at the Hotel Windsor, and was attended by over 100 delegates from all over Canada. The assembly was held for the purpose of discussing the proposed ordination of Miss Grouchy, who is a native of Montreal and has been active in the church for many years. The assembly was held on June 14 and 15, and was presided over by the Rev. Dr. J. H. Macdonald.

The Cheerful Cherub

I can't conceal my crimes.
I'm really quite distressed—
My life's an open book
That ought to be suppressed
at once.

But Mr. Windy didn't answer.
Instead he pulled the cover off
Bessie-doll's bed and then threw
Emily a hair-bow to one side of her head.

"Why! How do you do, Mr. Windy?"
"Come over and sit down?"
But Mr. Windy didn't answer.
Instead he pulled the cover off

Emily a hair-bow to one side of

"That wasn't Mr. Windy," said
Emily.

DOROTHY DIX

Don't Tie Yourself to a Girl's Anon Strings,
Young Man, Until You're Sure You Want It to Be Permanent—Don't Narrow Yourself Down to One Beau, Girls, Until He Pops the Question, for Competition Is the Life of the Love Trade

One of the things that appears to trouble greatly the youth and maiden of today is the difficulty of establishing just what jurisdiction each has over the other while they are in the "keeping company" stage. It is at this time when the young man poses the question and there is a definite breach in the "keeping company" stage. This halcyon period is vulgarly known as "keeping company." Theoretically, it should be ideal, a time of the fluttering wings and the golden story of a man and a woman who every day the potential lovers would discover from chance and happenstance to each other and everything would be untouched, unmarred by any edicts of duty and obligation.

For one would think that love would be free, that it is never to be when across the pathway swings the noose of the marriage tie, in which one must run one's neck at the end of an engagement.

That is the theory of "keeping company," but the practice of it seems to work out very differently and to be filled with heartache and bitter jealousy and impatient reproaches.

There is no day that I do not get down letters, calling upon me to arbitrate the difficulties that arise in the "keeping company" stage. The man and the girl are neither fish nor flesh nor devil and having no other way they are neither angel nor devil, neither bound nor free.

A girl will write that she has been "keeping company" for two or three years with a boy who has been "keeping company" for two or three years with her. They are both "keeping company" for two or three years with each other. They are both "keeping company" for two or three years with each other. They are both "keeping company" for two or three years with each other.

Now "keeping company" is merely a sort of sentimental option that a man and woman have on each other, and they can forswear it or let lapse as they like. It commits a man to nothing, it binds a girl to nothing, and the most elementary sense of justice should show both parties that they have no cause for complaint, no matter what the other one does.

You can't break a bargain until you have made one. You can't lose a thing you have never had. You can't impose a condition of matrimony upon those who are, in effect, mere acquaintances. You can't regulate the conduct of a man or woman unless you give that individual a legal right to do so.

The world's greatest exhibition of nerve is given by the man who associates to himself the privilege of cheating on a girl while she is "keeping company" with him. When he has not even asked her to be his wife and may possibly never ask her.

It takes monumental self-control and selfishness to make a man willing to monopolize a girl and keep all other men away from her on the off chance that he may pop the question to her if he has the right to do so. It takes monumental self-control and selfishness to make a man willing to monopolize a girl and keep all other men away from her on the off chance that he may pop the question to her if he has the right to do so.

And it is the world's crowning illustration of folly for a girl ever to be a party to such an unusual bargain, a bargain in which she inevitably gets the best of it, for she takes the greatest risk, she has no right to feel ill-used if the man who has been "keeping company" with her runs away.

He has never proposed marriage to her. He may never even have mentioned love. He has never assumed an obligation to her. She has not even the slightest hold on his coat tails, and if she has let him drive all other men away and kill all her chances of matrimony, she has no one to blame but herself.

From a practical standpoint it is impossible to imagine why girls stand for the "keeping company" custom for a minute. They have everything to lose by it and nothing to gain.

A young woman who permits a man to camp on her paper chairs, who allows him to take her to the movies and who lets him do as he pleases to her, puts herself absolutely in his power. If he doesn't choose to take her to the movies, she is left alone. If he doesn't choose to see her, she sits up solitary. And if he finally decides that he doesn't want to marry her, she is left alone. All of her youth and good looks may have been wasted in years of waiting on a man whose word of affection were without effect.

It is a good thing for men and women to see and know many women and men before they make their life's choice. This is impossible in the monopolistic condition imposed by the "keeping company" custom, which limits a man to going to see one girl, and a girl receiving the attentions of only one man.

So my earnest advice to all young men and women who are "keeping company" is to break up this silly practice. Don't "keep company" with a girl's anon string until you have made up your mind that because you considered to take her out to a movie and then her up now and then that you have the right to marry her. The privilege of being a woman goes with paying her bills.

And you, Miss Juliet, don't narrow yourself down to a single man until he comes across with an engagement ring and takes you home-burning. Competition is the life of trade, especially the love trade.

For to her who hath many suitors, still more shall be added, but from her who hath not shall be taken away, even the poor, lone, torn ready that she had.

Dear Miss Dix—Considering that I am a poor young man, paying for my life, will it be all right for me to marry a girl I love without giving her a diamond and to have a very simple wedding?

Not only entirely proper, but in good taste. A diamond ring is not necessary to make a marriage legal and binding. In fact, more marriages are made without diamonds than with them, and many a man who couldn't give his wife a diamond the size of a ship's wheel has married her for love and devotion, and has remained by the time they celebrated their silver wedding.

Wesley and Manitoba
Colleges in Merger
Canadian Press
MONTREAL, June 11—Announcement of Manitoba and Wesley colleges in Winnipeg under the name of "The United Colleges" but retaining for the present their separate charters, will come into effect when the respective executives give their assent to the plan. It was decided by the general council of the United Church of Canada in session here Wednesday.

The union expressed a desire for centralization of theological instruction in the Northwest, where there is no college in the center of the logical work. It was decided to merge the Wesleyan and Wesleyan colleges, which are now in session.

Health - Beauty

By Lois Tamm

Double Chin and Round Shoulders
People who carry their heads up and shoulders back, seldom have double chins. It is those who have a slouching posture with rounded shoulders, neck thrust forward and chest lowered, who are sure to develop an unsightly bulge under the lower jaw. The clear-cut line under the chin is a sign of youth which every woman should try to preserve.

Massage, exercise and the use of stringent lotions will make the double chin melt away and will greatly reduce the loose bag of flesh that obscures the beauty of the face. Throwing the head back and forth, cleaning the face and neck with cold water, and a few sharp exercises, sit or stand erect. Arms at sides. Throw the head back and forth.

GENE CARRIGAN TRIUMPHS IN HARD FOUGHT MATCH WITH FORMER CHAMPION

Events in the City tennis championships have narrowed down to the semi-finals.

With a splendid card of attractions for Thursday, the gallery witnessed some of the best tennis of the entire tourney.

It was a hard day for the veterans, and two of the city's brightest tennis luminaries went down in defeat in thrilling struggles.

GENE CARRIGAN

BEATS MITCHELL

In a match replete with long rallies, winning drives and astounded onlookers Eugene Carrigan won from Fred Mitchell, four times city and former provincial singles and doubles champion. Mitchell won the first set, 4-6, after stalling at 2-4, but in the second and third sets he fared as well as he could.

FRITH WINS

Any surprise occasioned by Carrigan's win over Mitchell was overshadowed by Frith's win over Coleman. Carrigan has been serving great game this year and was figured to be in shape to give even Dunsworth a run for it. Frith always looking at the door of a win over any player rose to speculate heights and raised the net consistently to wear down Coleman.

Frith's tactics that proved successful. It was a nip and tuck battle with the decisive ending in the balance with the last stroke.

A. A. Hyde ran true to form in two respects. First of all he had the first set and second set to defeat the dynamic Hamilton. Complicated by taking the extra frame.

Conny-Ching finished his best tennis in the opener, but after the former champion and presently guarded up the man who scored a sensational win over

McCarthy's conqueror, gradually lost out.

Embarrassing Moments

WHEN A PERSONAL LETTER THAT YOU WERE TYPING GOT MIXED UP WITH THE BOSS' CORRESPONDENCE

“AH, MISS HOTSY—THIS IS EVIDENTLY YOUR OWN. ALSO, I PRESUME THAT THE HARTHEATED, FROZEN-FACED EAGLE BEAKED BABOON-MINDED BOSS, TO WHOM YOU REFER TO IS MYSELF!”

NEIGHBORS WIVES

ERNEST LYNN, AUTHOR OF THE YELLOW STUB

BEGIN HERE TODAY
John and Mrs. Williams had a home of their own shortly after their first girl, who was named John, was born. John was a partner and copartner in a new contract. Previous chapters told how John, a romantic individual, was fascinated on meeting Nell, sister of whom the father, one of John's best friends, knew that she was having trouble with her husband.

A party is given by Nell and Vera Boyd, and Vera shows an interest in John which he does not return, but which causes John's jealousy. Nell Boyd later meets John in John's presence, an acquaintance between him and his wife Vera shortly after he left her by the letter to do as he pleased.

Ed and the baby go to Memphis to see John's people, and during her stay John is around a good deal with the family. John's wife, Vera, later leaves some trouble for John and his wife, Mrs. LAY.

Ed and Vera go to John's. MORTIMER FRANKS, now a prominent lawyer, comes to town and the two are together. John's chief interest in John is the fact that he is a record in theatrical publicity. # Mayor Martin of Montreal and Godson; Golf Notables in Action

JACK REDMOND, golf professional, at the new links of the Biltmore Shore Golf Club, driving at the 18th tee. Muriel Greer, having confidently lent her head for a tee. Talk about William Tell and the apple. Wheel!

CATHEDRAL MOUNTAINS south of Fairbanks, Alaska, east of Mt. McKinley, National Park. It was over these jagged peaks that it was feared the Norge had come to grief. The photograph was taken by Frederick Earp on the flight of the Detourer.

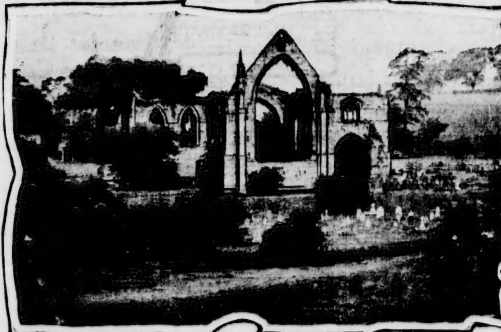

MAYOR MERIC MARTIN, long-time popular mayor of Montreal, with his Chinese godson. The mayor is wearing his chain of office.

ROBERT WILLIAM BRADLEY, 22, now the richest private in the United States Army, through the discovery of oil on a farm left him by his parents.

CARDINAL BONZANO, the Papal legate, who comes from Rome, bearing the document personally prepared by the Pope to be read at the Eucharistic Congress in Chicago at the Diocesan Seminary at Mundelein on June 24.

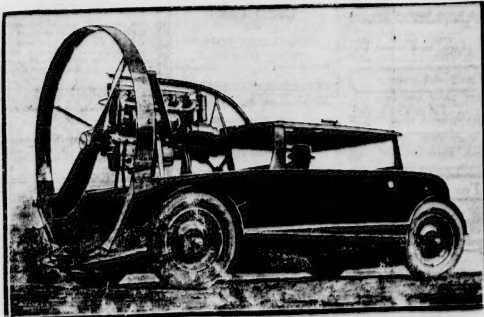

BOLTON ABBEY, situated on the Yorkshire moors. It is one of the most picturesque monuments in Great Britain. The king visits here every year, during the shooting season.

BOBBY JONES, Atlanta golfer, who was one of the contenders who crossed the Atlantic to take part in the British tournament. He won his first round for the Walker Cup, beating Major C. B. Ormerod at the end of nine holes with the match 3 and 2. The American team failed, however, to defeat the British team in this match.

MLLE. LAURETTE JOUANET, recently elected Queen of the Flower Festival at Rambouillet, sitting in her carriage, decorated with lilacs of the valley.

GEORGE McLAUGHLIN, a garage man of Bangor, Maine, has invented a machine which is capable of traveling on snow or ice, water and land. It is equipped with a 70 horsepower airplane motor, and will make 60 miles an hour on the road. It has airtight pontoons on both sides under the running boards.

MILLIE COLBERG makes one of three little pets in this idyllic group. Millie has a little lamb, and she took it to the dog show, for, of course, wherever Millie went the lamb was sure to go. At the show they fell in with "Lorna Doone," who was on an exhibition there, and nothing would do Millie but that she introduced the lamb to Lorna, and this amiable design has turned out very happily for the picture page. "Lorna Doone" is a typical English sheep dog, entirely distinct from the Scotch collie.

ROBERT STONE, postmaster of Pocahontas at the base of Mount Roche Miette in Jasper Park. Tourists are familiar with this halting place in the vast national playground, and the post-office follows the people. Mr. Stone is seen sorting the mail for this frontier delivery.
